Rutgers, The State University

Rutgers, The State University, which began as a struggling colonial college before the Revolution, celebrated its Bicentennial Anniversary in 1966. Founded in 1766 by Dutch pioneers, Rutgers originally was called Queens College under a charter from King George III of England. The young college's existence was threatened by the Revolution, but growth followed that conflict, just as unprecedented expansion was experienced after the last World War.

Rutgers was given its present name in 1825, after generous gifts had been received from Colonel Rutgers, a New York philanthropist. Forty years later it was designated the Land Grant College of New Jersey, the liberal arts course was enlarged, and courses leading to bachelor degrees in agriculture and engineering were added.

In 1902 a ceramics department was established, New Jersey College for Women with its own New Brunswick campus, was founded in 1918; the School of Education added in 1923; and in 1925 the Extension Division for non-degree education and the School of Journalism were established. The College of Pharmacy was added in 1927, University College, degree-granting evening division, was established in 1934, and Newark University was merged with Rutgers in 1946. In 1945, the State Legislature brought all divisions of Rutgers within the designation of the State University of New Jersey. In 1950, an act of the State Legislature incorporated the College of South Jersey in Camden, including a two-year liberal arts college and a law school, into the State University as the Rutgers College of South Jersey. In April, 1955, N.J.C. was renamed Douglass College. In 1956, under a reorganization program, the University was officially designated, Rutgers, The State University, and came under the management of an 11-man Board of Governors.

Dr. Mason W. Gross, the 16th president of the University, was inaugurated in May, 1959.

Rutgers has grown from about 3,000 students in 1957 to more than double that now. The future, which includes growth at Livingston College, formerly Camp Kilmer, and a new medical school, is aimed at ever-increasing service to the State of New Jersey.

Bateman, who was an assistant at Columbia under Lou Little for 11 years and at Penn under Steve Sebo from 1957 through 1959, is a native New Jerseyman. He attended Central High and St. Benedict's prep in Newark before entering Columbia in 1934. He played guard under Little at Columbia, captaining the 1937 Lion eleven. Rutgers' all-time great quarterback (1945-48), Frank twice previously was on the Rutgers staff, first as freshman coach and later as backfield coach. In between he was head coach at Johns Hopkins for two years. A native of Roselle Park, Burns was an All-East selection at quarterback, excelled as a linebacker, was an outstanding baseball catcher, and played professional football briefly.

Twitchell won six varsity letters as an undergraduate, captaining the 1934 football team as center and winning the Donald Leslie Coursen trophy, highest individual athletic award given at the University.

A native of Dedham, Mass., he began his coaching career at North Plainfield, N. J., High School. He went to Sewanhaka High School in 1937, served later as assistant football coach at Hofstra College, then returned to Sewanhaka as head coach of football and lacrosse until 1947.

He helped organize and is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Athletic Directors.

Frederick E. Gruninger, Assistant Director

WITH KEN GERMANN'S departure to become Columbia Athletic Director, Fred Gruninger has moved up from his post as assistant to the director to become Al Twitchell's chief aide. A 1953 Rutgers alumnus, Fred served in Alumni Relations for five years, holding the title of Associate Director, before shifting to the Athletic Department in 1964. As an undergraduate he played football and baseball and following his graduation was a golf professional briefly. He will continue to coach the Rutgers varsity golf team, which he has directed to a 50-25-1 record in five seasons.

Otto H. Hill, Business Manager

A MEMBER OF the Rutgers staff since 1947, Otto Hill was appointed business manager of athletics in 1961. A 1942 graduate of Rutgers, he served in the Army and Air Force during World War II returning to earn his master's degree in 1947. The Outlook - 1968

There is a good chance that Rutgers will come up with representative offensive and defensive first units, despite some question marks. But depth remains a problem which could spell the difference as the Scarlet heads into a rugged 10-game schedule which includes nary a pushover.

There is no denying the presence of a moderate group of solid players. On offense, tailback Bryant Mitchell, tackles Rich Koprowski and Dave Zimmerman and quarterback Bruce Van Ness could be in the running for honors of varying degrees.

And on defense, there aren't many better linebackers than Rich Bing and Lee Schneider nor defensive backs than John Pollock, the safety.

"What happens when one of these players is out of action for a while?" Coach John Bateman asks. "The replacements just aren't up to the quality of the starters, with very few exceptions."

THE OFFENSE: A slight change in formation, with two tight ends and a flanker back replacing the old split end and wingback. The line has five solid veterans and should be in good shape if junior John Orrizzi fulfills his promise at center and Jim Benedict, a transfer, comes through at left end. There is fine size, with about a 215 average, but the second unit barely averages 200 pounds and is composed exclusively of newcomers. The backfield is better off in depth, with Mitchell and Van Ness expected to be true standouts. Four sophomores will battle for the flanker job, with Al Fenstemacher heading the list.

THE DEFENSE: There will be some use of 4-4 alignments to take advantage of strong linebacking. Tackle Jim DiGiacinto, at 240, is the only sizable lineman and should help stabilize what was a problem area last year. The secondary has been helped by the move of Pete Savino from the offense. The depth is green and a couple of starting jobs are unsettled. This will be a young unit, with only three or four seniors expected to start and its rapid development will be necessary for team success.

GENERAL: Punting is questionable, place kicking should be good with Jim Julian. The second year of spring drills should make a difference, but the addition of a tenth game eliminated a scrimmage.

BATEMAN: "The schedule is one of the toughest we have faced. It will take exceptional play by the veterans, quick development of the sophomores and some luck with injuries if we are to have a break-even or better season. We will be respectable, but so will almost every one of our opponents."

The Leading Scarlet Knights

Ends

JOE BARONE, junior. The starting freshman quarterback in 1966, Joe was moved to end last year, getting tryouts offensively and defensively. He caught six passes in the spring game. Need for good receivers projects him strongly into the picture . . . Romance Languages major, hoping for graduate school.

JOHN BAUER, sophomore. A regular with the 1967 freshman team, John is a promising young player, both as a receiver and blocker. He is from a football family, his father serves as head coach at Randolph Township . . . Good showing in spring game boosted his stock . . . Liberal Arts students, plans to teach and coach.

JIM BENEDICT, junior. Jim came to Rutgers last year with Rich Policastro from V.M.I., where both spent two years. He sat out the 1967 season, but worked out frequently and was slotted as a starting offensive end in spring practice and held the job . . . Is enrolled in physical education curriculum.

RICK BONSTALL, junior. Halfway through fall practice last year Rick won a first string assignment and has been there ever since. Quick to learn and seldom guilty of the same mistake twice, Rick is expected to be a leader on what may be a non-senior defensive line . . . The most valuable athlete at Franklin Township High, Rick is studying Mechanical Engineering.

FRANK HALLORAN, senior. As tough and aggressive as they come, Frank needs only to discipline himself and forget free-lancing to become important to the Rutgers defensive unit . . . Became eligible last year for the first time after transferring from Navy . . . Business Administration student.

ANDY NAPORANO, sophomore. Relatively experienced for a sophomore, with Lawrenceville Prep and Millburn High School behind him, Andy made a good impression on defense in spring practice . . . Played frosh lacrosse . . . His uncle, Tony, played for Rutgers (1934-36) and coached at Barringer in Newark for 23 years. Enrolled in pre-law curriculum.

MIKE PELLOWSKI, sophomore. Like Bonsall, Mike earned honors at Franklin Township High as the best all-around athlete . . . His work last spring was impressive and he is scheduled to begin fall drills as a first unit defensive player . . . Was a freshman regular last year . . . Also played frosh baseball . . . Physical Education student.

BOB STONEBRAKER, junior. With a fine sophomore season behind him, Bob is settled now at a tight end spot after spending part of '67 at split end. He catches and blocks well and is a hard worker . . . Background includes wrestling and baseball . . . Majoring in physical education.

Tackles

MURRAY BAKST, sophomore. After showing well with the freshmen as a center and linebacker, Murray could make the offensive team at tackle, where a vacancy exists . . . If not, he'll be a valuable back-up man . . . Competed in track and wrestling in high school . . . Enrolled in Agricultural Business curriculum.

JIM DIGIACINTO, Junior. Two games late last season on defense, the addition of 20 pounds and an impressive spring game have made a regular out of Jim, who was a reserve on offense for the first seven games last year . . . Has good movement to go with size and fills one of last year's major weak points . . . Majoring in Business Administration.

DENNIS DUTCH, senior. Although he prefers playing end on defense, Denny went to tackle last year for the benefit of the team and gave it all he had. He was given a shot at an end job in spring drills, but the likelihood is that he will stay at tackle . . . A History student, he plans to enter the Navy after graduation.

MO HILL, senior. A determined athlete, Mo was on the brink of playing regularly last year after an injury-plagued sophomore year . . . Formerly an offensive guard, appeared to be comfortable at defensive tackle last spring . . . His grandfather, Frank Hill, coached Rutgers in basketball for 27 years, his father is an alumnus and his younger brother, Chris, is enrolling this year and is a fine basketball prospect . . . A Biology student, Mo hopes to attend dental school.

JIM JULIAN, senior. A starting guard last year, Jim has moved over to a tackle post on offense. A two-year letterman, he is the Scarlet's leading place-kicker, after two years in the shadow of Jim Dulin. He trailed Dulin only in length. His accuracy is his strong suit and he has capabilities for kicking 40-yard field goals . . . Majoring in Geography.

RICH KOPROWSKI, senior. The biggest man on the Rutgers varsity, Rich is beginning his third year at offensive tackle . . . He weighed about 270 last spring, but hopes to play at 245 or 250 . . . Is one of the leaders of a veteran unit, has potential to try post-graduate football before entering field of Chemical Engineering.

PAUL MILEA, sophomore. The 1967 freshman football roster listed Paul as a 200-pound fullback. Now at 225, still only 18, he is considered a promising defensive lineman . . . He played middle guard for a while in high school, where he also wrestled . . . Majoring in Wildlife Conservation.

JOHN NIEMYER, senior. A dependable backup performer at tackle or middle guard, John works diligently to make up for a lack of size and just average speed . . . Is President of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity . . . A Political Science student, he plans to attend law school.

Guards

ALAN GREENBERG, senior. An intense competitor, Alan responded to a challenge to regain first string job last year on offense. He started in three games as a sophomore, then suffered a broken foot and missed remainder of season . . . A Business Administration student, he plans to follow in his father's footsteps and become a dentist.

JOHN LANGENUS, junior. One of the leading linemen on the 1966 freshman eleven, John missed football last fall after minor surgery and a shoulder injury . . . Showed he had lost little of his 1966 form in spring drills . . . Threw the shot over 51 feet last spring in track . . . His father is Rutgers graduate . . . Liberal Arts student.

BOB STOCKMAN, senior. Bob is good example of someone who simply wants to play football. Dropped out of school for a year after his sophomore season, when he was end, but returned in spring and showed enough promise to move in behind Dave Zimmerman at right guard . . . Majoring in Wildlife Biology.

DAVE ZIMMERMAN, senior. Probably the strongest blocker on the offensive line, Dave has been a starting tackle the last two years, now moves over to guard, where he is quick enough despite his 245 pounds . . . Played baseball last spring at third base . . . Was an All-New England prep school choice, has hopes of continuing in football . . . Majoring in History.

Centers

RON ASTRIDGE, senior. After tryouts at tackle, offensively and defensively, Ron has been moved to center. He was given a shot at a starting job last spring, but is lacking slightly in mobility . . . Also plays rugby . . . Majoring in Geology, Ron intends to join the Peace Corps after graduation.

JOHN ORRIZZI, junior. Considered a strong player, Jack backed up Tom Vitolo last year, played briefly, but showed his mettle as an athlete by excelling on defense in lacrosse, where he could be an "all" choice in the future . . . Very quick, he has real leadership potential . . . A Liberal Arts student.

GARY TINNEY, sophomore. An alternate at center with the freshman team last year, Gary withstood the tests last spring and heads into the fall as the number two man at the pivot post . . . Was active in baseball and wrestling in high school . . . Majoring in Liberal Arts.

Linebackers

RICH BING, senior. Without doubt, one of the better players on the defensive unit . . . Excellent techniques, good speed and hitting ability combined with great desire to succeed . . . Was the leading tackler last year . . . Will call the defensive signals . . . Studying General Science Education.

CHUCK BOWERS, senior. Blessed with considerable talent and speed, Chuck was troubled by a knee injury last season and was slowed down as a result . . . Had great deal of success last season in lacrosse and is hoping for a carry-over into football . . . Majoring in Agricultural Research, he intends to go to medical school.

STEVE BOYD, sophomore. Immediately impressive as a linebacker last spring, Steve was tested on offense, too, but was restored to defense where he probably will be a key reserve . . . Also participated in lacrosse . . . Agriculture major, intends to become marine biologist.

LARRY CLYMER, sophomore. Slotted in the "Rover," or "Knight," position, as it will be known, Larry is fast and strong, abilities he uses to overcome a lack of height (5-8) . . . His uncle, Bruce, was a Rutgers halfback in the early '50s . . . Liberal Arts student.

DREW FORGASH, senior. Troubled by injuries a year ago, Drew stood out with his tackling in spring drills and is looking forward to a starting assignment . . . His father, a professor of Entomology, is a Rutgers alumnus . . . Drew is studying Landscape Architecture; hopes to attend graduate school.

KEVIN O'CONNOR, sophomore. One of the leading players in Long Island two years ago, Kevin operated from fullback and linebacker with the freshmen and is tabbed as a future standout at the latter position . . . Won numerous awards in high school, is enrolled in Pre-Veterinary curriculum, hopes to go on to medical school.

ALAN MILLER, junior. A defensive halfback last year, Alan has been moved to the "Knight" position, where three-way battle for honors is expected in the fall . . . His high school coach was Jim Taigia, new line coach . . . Alan is enrolled in History curriculum.

LEE SCHNEIDER, junior. One of the top members of the defensive unit, Lee will be in the line at middle guard or behind it as a linebacker. The latter job appeals to him most and he excels at it, having excellent mobility to go with adequate size . . . Played tackle in a pinch last year, moving to linebacker late in year . . . Enrolled in Agricultural Business curriculum.

Quarterbacks

RICH POLICASTRO, junior. Rich came to Rutgers after two years at VMI and sat out last year as a transfer. He earned his Gym credits by serving as the scout team quarterback and last spring impressed with his passing . . . Ran first offense in spring game, with Van Ness out . . . Is expected to add major passing threat to the offense . . . Enrolled in Agricultural Business.

BRUCE VAN NESS, junior. It's hard to judge how good Bruce will be this year. An off-season operation corrected his shoulder problem and should permit him to maneuver freely. Four games at QB last fall will provide invaluable experience and hard work last spring appears to have sharpened his passing touch . . . It's a little early to say, but the ECAC sophomore of the year could be headed for additional honors. Agricultural Business student.

MIKE YANCHEFF, sophomore. A spectacular passing exhibition in the spring game opened a lot of eyes to this big young man's potential. Not particularly fast, he is strong, has a fine touch and won't be 19 until the season is over . . . Played frosh lacrosse . . . Majoring in Landscape Architecture.

Running Backs

MEL BROWN, senior. Mel has been a solid performer at fullback and tailback the last two seasons, although mostly as a backup man. Now, he's a starter at a running back post, bringing with him a 3.9 average per carry over two seasons (86 for 334) . . . He's also caught 12 passes in that span . . . Majoring in Agricultural-Business.

JOE CAMPASSI, senior. Often referred to by the defense as the hardest runner to bring down, Joe got a few brief outings last year but is expected to see more action at fullback in 1968. He is a quick starter with better than average speed and battles hard for extra yardage. Majoring in Agricultural Science.

STEVE FERRUGHELLI, sophomore. Able both as a fullback and linebacker, this young man is the fullback of the future. He has fine size and speed and is an intense athlete who was agile enough to run the hurdles in high school. He is a raw talent who probably will be brought along slowly with an eye toward 1969 . . . Majoring in Animal Science.

PAUL HOHNE, senior. Ranked behind Jim Baker at wingback the last two seasons, Paul, who ran the reverses well, has been moved to tailback, where he'll have more opportunity to carry the ball. Has been successful at returning kicks, is rated a good pass receiver. Chemical Engineering student.

ART MCGUIRE, sophomore. Although not blessed with great speed, Art was an effective runner from tailback with the freshmen and continued to improve last spring. With two seniors ahead of him, his future is bright. Was all-stater in Massachusetts. Majoring in Agricultural Business.

BRYANT MITCHELL, senior. With 1,082 yards to his credit, Mitch is looking forward to an injury-free year which could put him among Rutgers most productive all-time runners. Very fast, he has surprising power. Has 14 TDs, 12 on the ground, to his credit, could be one of the best running backs in East. Has missed four full games and parts of others with injuries in past. Art History major.

Flanker Backs

SAM CHAPMAN, sophomore. One of the bright prospects on the frosh eleven last year, Sam suffered a severe leg fracture in the final game and, until spring practice, his physical status was doubtful. Although he didn't get hit he demonstrated a good recovery and with his great speed could be a threat at flanker. If not, he'll move to the defensive backfield. Enrolled in Agricultural Business.

AL FENSTEMACHER, sophomore. A phenomenal pass-catching exhibition last spring (seven catches) boosted the stock of this fleet former wingback and defensive back who will open fall drills as a first stringer. Not as tall as the ideal flanker, he has a knack of getting free and runs well with the ball . . . Majoring in Forestry.

JOHN MILLER, sophomore. Unheralded, John came into spring practice and for a while moved to the first unit at flanker back until a leg infection set him back. He was injured part of his freshman season and still is an unknown, although he has potential to be good receiver. His father played lightweight football for Rutgers. Liberal Arts major.

Defensive Backs

JOHN POLLOCK, senior. One of the complete football players on the defensive unit, John is rated a standout safety. He returns punts well, can recover quickly, and is a threat to go all the way with an interception (he had four last year). He also is a punter, if needed. Majoring in Agricultural Business.

JIM RENSHAW, junior. By mid-season last year, Jim had won himself a job at halfback, displaying exceptional poise and judgment. He is quick enough to cover good receivers, strong enough to meet the running attack and is a keen competitor, to go with it. Majoring in Journalism.

PETE SAVINO, senior. A talented athlete who plays where he's needed, Pete is a winner who has consented to move to defensive halfback after previously playing quarterback and split end. He is described as a "natural" on defense. In spring game, he also worked at flanker back and could help there, if needed. Business Administration student.

THE 100th ANNIVERSARY

Next season, intercollegiate football will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the game which began on Nov. 6, 1869, when Rutgers met Princeton in New Brunswick.

Plans are rapidly developing to make this a national celebration, involving the N.C.A.A., the National Football Hall of Fame, the National Association of Athletic Directors, the Football Coaches and other groups.

A postage stamp is expected to be issued, a television documentary on intercollegiate football is being planned, special publications and articles are being prepared and it is hoped that the anniversary will serve as a means of focusing national attention on the sport we all feel has so much to offer to American life.

Rutgers, for its part, has a six-game home schedule, with the visit of Princeton on Sept. 27 the keynote event of the season. There is a strong possibility of national television coverage. The Rutgers and Princeton student bodies are planning special joint activities and it is hoped that the banner of every football-playing college in the nation will be flown atop Rutgers Stadium for the game.

LAFAYETTE PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 16; Lettermen Lost: 20

Harry Gamble is in the second year of a rebuilding drive and has a veteran quarterback, Ed Baker, to build upon. Baker impressed against Rutgers last year and has what Gamble feels are "leadership" qualities.

The Leopards suffered heavy graduation losses and will find it hardest to fill gaps at center, tight end and fullback. Gamble is hoping for improved balance on offense and feels his 1968 team will have better team speed. Depth, as usual, will be a problem.

LAST YEAR'S GAME: Rutgers 27, Lafayette 3

Rutgers jumped off to a quick start with 20 points in the first half. Bruce Van Ness, starting his first game at quarterback, led the Scarlet attack by passing for two touchdowns and running for another. Lafayette scored first after intercepting a Van Ness toss, but the 6-3 sophomore steadied himself as the Knights came charging back.

Fullback Don Riesett, recovering from early season injuries, picked up two scores for Rutgers—a seven-yard pass from Van Ness in the second period and a six-yard run in the third. Leopard quarterback Ed Baker tried to regroup his team with a passing game. Baker rolled up 183 yards in the air.

PRINCETON PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 24; Lettermen Lost: 14

With veterans returning at almost every position, with a backfield composed of Dick Bracken or Scott MacBean, Ellis Moore and possibly sophomore Pete Hauck, and with such standouts as 6-6, 240-pound Dave Hantz, Princeton appears headed for one of its better seasons.

Dick Colman, usually conservative, admits to having considerable experience. The only possibility of trouble for the Tigers is in the defensive secondary and there is a question of physical condition for several players returning from knee surgery.

LAST YEAR'S GAME: Princeton 22, Rutgers 21

Behind by seven points with two minutes left in the game, Princeton marched 57 yards for its final touchdown before dramatically winning the game with a successful two-point conversion attempt.

Princeton had jumped off to an early 14-0 lead in the first period, but Rutgers, behind Bryant Mitchell's spectacular running, evened the score at the beginning of the second half. In the final period, Mitchell, who ran for 162 yards, collected his third touchdown of the day on a 33-yard scamper around end. This set the stage for the winning Princeton score. Bob Schoene caught Bob Weber's 11-yard pass for the touchdown and then Weber made a leaping grab of Scott MacBean's conversion pass.

CORNELL PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 27; Lettermen Lost: 12

The chief doubt about Cornell is its offensive line. Only one starter is returning. If Coach Jack Musick can come up with able newcomers, Cornell will have another good team, possibly Musick's best.

Quarterback Bill Robertson set six Cornell passing records last year. Defensive tackle John Sponheimer (6-5, 245) was an All-Ivy choice. Capt. Doug Kleiber and Rick Newton are top linebackers. Some outstanding sophomores, headed by quarterback Dick Furbush, are expected to add depth.

THE LAST GAME: Cornell 41, Rutgers 0 (1925)

Cornell had what today is known as a "laugh" the last time these teams met, smothering a Rutgers team which suffered through a 2-8 season.

Coached by Gil Dobie, the Big Red had a 31-0 lead at the half and it was no contest against Jack Wallace's team. Rutgers' stars, C. Hoyt Terrill, the captain, and Wallace Chandler, were hurt in the opening minutes. Stan Bliss, a punter, Bill Dalton, a tackle, and French Hanf, an end, were commended for their efforts on Rutgers' behalf.

LEHIGH PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 22; Lettermen Lost: 14

Rick Laubach, who holds six Lehigh passing records, leads 22 lettermen who are hoping to give Lehigh a new look this fall. Laubach's chief target could be Mike Leib, converted from tailback to split end.

Other leading players for the Engineers are Reggie Jennings, who made the MAC team at tackle, and John Miller, a guard and co-captain. Justin Plummer, a 205-pound fullback, could add punch to the attack.

LAST YEAR'S GAME: Rutgers 14, Lehigh 7

Looking for its first win of the season last year, Rutgers called upon sophomore Bruce Van Ness to head its charge. Running, passing, and receiving, Van Ness scored both Rutgers touchdowns and continually electrified the crowd with his own brand of razzle-dazzle. At one point, Van Ness ran for a 40-yard touchdown by covering almost 100 yards with a number of evasive maneuvers.

Prior to the Rutgers touchdowns, Lehigh had established its own offense by marching 41 yards in six plays during the first quarter to take a 7-0 lead.

ARMY PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 16; Lettermen Lost: 16

Army is deep in established backs, but must get help from newcomers up front if it is to continue winning games with the frequency it has become accustomed to under Tom Cahill.

There are three lettermen at quarterback, headed by the talented Steve Lindell, plus fine runners in Lynn Moore, Hank Andrzejczak and Charlie Jarvis. Bill Hunter, a sophomore, could win a starting job at running back. Linebacker Ken Johnson and Jarvis are considered All-America prospects.

LAST YEAR'S GAME: Army 14, Rutgers 3

Army's alert defense set up two early scores, countered by Jim Dulin's field goal, and that was it offensively. A pass interception gave Army the ball at the outset on the Rutgers 48 and a great run by Jarvis from the 33 accounted for TD number one.

Stymied on the Army 19, Rutgers went for three with Dulin. Then Army sensed a quick kick and returned it to the Rutgers 32. Seven plays later Jarvis scored again. The yardage figures were almost even, Army leading, 279-263.

COLUMBIA PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 22; Lettermen Lost: 11

As with any new regime, it is hard to assess Columbia's 1968 team. Coach Frank Navarro is certain to make use of quarterback Marty Domres, whose running and passing beat Rutgers a year ago. He holds a number of Columbia and Ivy League records.

Domres' primary target may well be Bill Wazevich, who set a Columbia mark with 45 catches last year.

LAST YEAR'S GAME: Columbia 24, Rutgers 13

Lion Quarterback Marty Domres directed his team to touchdowns the first two times he had possession of the ball. Rolling out, dropping back and handing off into the line, Domres controlled the game from the opening minutes.

Late in the first period, Rutgers broke into the scoring column with a 39-yard pass from Pete Savino to Bob Stonebraker. After Domres passed to Don Hubert for the third Columbia score, Rutgers' Jim Baker ran 33 yards down the sideline on a reverse for the last Rutgers touchdown.

DELAWARE PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 20; Lettermen Lost: 14

The Delaware 1968 emphasis will be on improving the defense and finding replacements for the offensive leaders of 1967 who have graduated. Sophomores are very much in the picture in all departments.

Linebacker John Favero is expected to be a leader among the defenders. Tom DiMuzio, a halfback last year, could be the quarterback, although three sophomores are rated good prospects. An outstanding end will be Ron Withelder.

LAST YEAR'S GAME: Rutgers 29, Delaware 21

Scarlet quarterback Pete Savino had a brilliant day against the Blue Hens, involving himself, either directly or indirectly, with all four of the Rutgers touchdowns.

Savino passed to Jim Baker for the first score, set up a three-yard run by Bruce Van Ness with a 33-yard screen pass to Mel Brown, and scored himself on runs of one and six yards to give Rutgers the victory. Rutgers needed every one of those points to counteract the passing attack of Delaware's Frank Linzenbold. Linzenbold accounted for 281 yards in the air.

CONNECTICUT PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 18; Lettermen Lost: 12

If Coach John Toner can come up with line replacements, he could have an outstanding offensive unit, what with all of last year's backs returning, headed by quarterback Pete Petrillo, who set a Connecticut total offense record a year ago.

John Crisp, a 6-4 flanker, caught 32 passes, a UConn record, and is back again. The major problem on defense appears to be at the linebacking and halfback positions. Center is the strong point of the offensive line, with Ben De Genova on hand.

LAST GAME (1965): Rutgers 17, Connecticut 8

In a game loaded with frustration, Rutgers scored 17 points in the second period only to find itself reeling in the final minutes of the game. The Scarlet was halted twice inside the five-yard line by a determined Huskie line. Connecticut Quarterback Paul Whaley passed for one score and barely missed with another. The game was finally iced when Scarlet linebacker Lou Tepper intercepted a Whaley pass on the Rutgers six-yard line with 1:45 left in the game.

HOLY CROSS PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 21; Lettermen Lost: 15

Holy Cross lost mostly interior linemen from last year's squad, thus its prospects depend on how the replacements do. But it should have a potent offense, thanks to the passing of Phil O'Neill, who returns with all of his backfield mates.

The offensive line will be built around 255-pound Bill Moncevicz, a sophomore last year. Bob Neary, an end, caught 34 passes last year and is a co-captain. The defensive co-captain, Bob Kurcz, has intercepted 11 passes in two seasons.

LAST YEAR'S GAME: Holy Cross 21, Rutgers 10

A rain-soaked crowd of 16,000 fans sat through most of the game in Rutgers Stadium last year as Holy Cross Quarterback Phil O'Neill threw seven passes, all in the first half, for two touchdowns and a victory over Rutgers.

O'Neill didn't pass at all in the second half, but he didn't have to as Holy Cross was able to discourage any major Rutgers offensive. Scarlet Tailback Bryant Mitchell sped 62 yards in the first quarter for the home team's only touchdown. Jim Dulin's three-pointer in the second period set a Rutgers record for career field goals.

COLGATE PROSPECTS

Returning Lettermen: 28; Lettermen Lost: 7

After a string of outstanding teams, Colgate had an off year in 1967 and it could be an asset for this fall when 28 lettermen will be back, remembering last season's bitter lessons. Quarterback Ron Burton, speedy Al Pearman and a light, but fast line are expected to provide the offensive punch.

Defensively, new coach Neil Wheelwright is hoping to improve last year's pass defense weaknesses, building around Ted Beckman and Charlie Fox. Capt. Gene Detwiler, who played defense last year, will be the fullback.

LAST YEAR'S GAME: Rutgers 31, Colgate 28

After jumping off to a 24-0 lead behind the passing of Bruce Van Ness, the running of Bryant Mitchell and the kicking of Jim Dulin, Rutgers found itself behind 28-24 with four minutes left in the game. The Scarlet finally got the winning score on a 35-yard screen pass from Van Ness to Mitchell with 2:41 left on the clock.

Colgate quarterback Ron Burton and running back Alvin Pearman had rallied the Maroon to the near victory. For Rutgers, Van Ness threw for three touchdowns which tied a Rutgers record.
